Discipleship in a Digital Age

How do we form disciples online as well as face to face? Can it be both? This online discussion will explore how people's online lives can be important for their believing, belonging and behaving. We'll be talking about discipleship as both communal and individual experience. Should churches plan to go back to normal or can they embrace new possibilities for 24/7 faith formation in people's daily lives?

Dr Bex Lewis is a lecturer in communication at the Manchester Metropolitan University, and the author of "Raising Children in a Digital Age". She speaks regularly to churches and to TV news about digital media. Bex has also been involved in churches' digital media development and projects for a number of years.

The online session will be hosted by Craig Mitchell and Duncan MacLeod for Port Phillip Presbytery, Uniting Church.
